

1. This hepatic protein is very important in maintaining proper blood volume.
2. This animal does not have a gallbladder:
3. This nitrogenous waste product, found in porcine urine, is an end-product of amino acid metabolism.
4. The _____ is the functional unit of the liver.
5. This molecule is the storage form of glucose in the canine liver.
6. This molecule is a world-famous antagonist of progesterone.
7. List the fat-soluble vitamins:
8. In the world of Immunology, plasma cells produce: _____
9. Name the hole in the equine skull that allows the brain stem to exit the skull:
10. The knot of capillaries in Bowman's space is termed the: _____
11. The _____ is the tube that transports urine from the kidney to the bladder by these wave-like contractions of smooth muscle: _____
12. Name the afferent blood vessel that carries oxygen-poor (but nutrient-rich) blood into the liver.
13. Mucus is not usually found in the urine of healthy animals but it is a normal constituent of this animal's urine:
14. Name the one neurotransmitter released at every motor end-plate in the goat.
15. This is another term (name) for renin: